

Not a new product as such, but a new web presence: yes, Royal Agio Cigars has introduced an innovative cigar platform on the renewed website www.balmoralcigars.com. Described as a "true premium cigar platform", the site contains information on the Balmoral brand and the world of short- and long-filler cigars. Benjamin van der Kloet, brand manager for Agio Cigars, explains: "We wanted to create a concept where visitors could navigate through the Balmoral castle and be able to get all kinds of information on premium cigars and tobacco while exploring. Each and every room has been designed and decorated to what we think our version of the Balmoral castle would like."

Slinks are a "distinctive, flexible and uniquely versatile sandal. The luxurious, padded leather bases are completely transformable with additions from the current range of eight styles of uppers; with one purchase, the consumer is securing two different styles of sandals and additional uppers can be purchased separately. When in place, the uppers of the sandals appear fixed and delicate – but they are both detachable and very strong. Incredibly lightweight but durable, Slinks uppers are available in an appealing range of styles and colours - including beaded, rosette and simple leather straps - and offer exceptional retail potential as an impulse purchase, self-treat and for gifting. The leather bases, which come with two alternative uppers wrapped in a silk pouch, retail at £70.00 (€80) with additional uppers available at £15-£30 (€16 – €35) depending on the design.
